

Annual Sales Tax Revenue Sharing Begins

Reno-Sparks Indian Colony giving nearly $500,000 to Washoe County Schools

The Reno-Sparks Indian Colony (RSIC) will commemorate its first revenue sharing payment to the Washoe County School District with a press conference and ceremonial “Big Check” handover this Tuesday, at 10 a.m., at the Tribal Health Center (1715 Kuenzli St.).

“We are to reinforce proud publicly our commitment to educating all Washoe County school children,” said Arlan D. Melendez, Chairman of the RSIC. “Our leadership is committed to the academic advancement of not just our Native American students, but to all area youth.”

This nearly half million dollar contribution is the final step in a 15 year project between Washoe County, the State of Nevada, and the RSIC.

“This collaboration was designed to benefit all parties, most importantly our children,” Chairman Melendez said. “Thanks to the success of our retail operations with our increased tax revenue, the entire region is enjoying new community amenities, increased urban development, private partnerships and of course, revenue sharing for education.”

In accordance with Senate Bill 299 which unanimously passed the Nevada Legislature in 2005, the RSIC proposed to share sales tax revenue from its retail project near Highway 395 and East 2nd street to benefit the Washoe County School District.

As outlined in the law, this annual revenue sharing payment from the RSIC will go to the Washoe County School District School Renewals Fund, a capital budget that funds construction/repair projects for the entire school district.

A description of the various types of projects funded can be found at the WCSO website at: <http://wcsdbuilding.com/> and <http://wcsdbuilding.com/what-is-the-plan-for-building-and-repairing-schools/>.

As is typical of government revenue sharing agreements, the law did not earmark expenditures just for the Native American community.

Tribal Member Johni Bill Opens Alluring Beauty

Native entrepreneur sets individual self-determination example for community

For years, Johni Bill has wanted to help people with an issue she encountered as a teen---skin health. Now, as the owner/operator of Alluring Beauty, Bill is not just providing aesthetician services, but she is a role model for other budding entrepreneurs.

"I'm still learning, but I am really excited," Bill said. "Becoming a business owner is a big step for me."

Her business, located at 1962 Pyramid Hwy, in a shared space with the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony's Smoke Shop V, focuses on waxing, tinting and eyelash extensions and Bill plans to offer facials soon.

Since high school when Bill herself dealt with problem skin, she has explored the field of cosmetology and has had an interest in being a hair and makeup artist.

It was this ambition which led her to a Jan. 30 grand opening of her open salon.

"Johni had a vision and has stepped forward to be one of our small business pioneers," Chairman Arlan D. Melendez told the crowd of about 20 which gathered for the celebration. "When you really think about self-determination, a term that we talk about a lot in Indian Country, Johni is showing us a real example."

Bill said that she does feel a little pressure, but she is excited to show other people that operating a business is a worthy, attainable goal for anyone willing to work hard.

"There are a lot of laws and rules, and that is a good thing," Bill said. "Creating a business plan and a safety manual took a lot."

According to Steve Moran, the director of the RSIC Economic Development and Business Enterprises Department, one of the goals of the RSIC Tribal Council is to offer more help to tribal members who want to go into business for themselves.

In addition to providing information about local resources which can help an entrepreneur secure funding, write a business plan, file for a business license, and the like, the Colony has partnered with other agencies to hold workshops to assist entrepreneurs.

In the case of Alluring Beauty, the RSIC's operation of a business incubator---retail space for multiple users---allows the tribe to offer low start up costs to help Bill get her business started.

Chairman Melendez said that because Bill has the tenacity to be independent and not totally dependent on the tribe, she is fulfilling an important role for the entire community.

"We recognize that we need more small businesses," Melendez said. "That will take leaders in our community and we congratulate and thank Johni for taking on that responsibility."

Alluring Beauty is open Tuesday-Sunday from 10 a.m., until 7 p.m. Bill can be reached at 775/722-4880.

Alluring Beauty — Reno-Sparks Indian Colony Tribal member Johni Bill celebrated the grand opening of her new business located at 1962 Pyramid Hwy, Suite B, next to Smoke Shop V. Specializing in aesthetician services like waxing, tinting and eyelash extensions, call 722-4880 for an appointment.

VA Enlists Tribes for Help With Cultural Competency

Rule changes allows Native facilities to assist veterans with benefit claims

*By Jefferson Keel,
Lt. Governor of the Chickasaw Nation and former President of the NCAI*

Native Americans serve in the military among the highest rate, per capita, compared to other groups and our nations honor the place of tribal warriors in our communities and our culture on a daily basis.

But for Veterans living within or near tribal communities, it can sometimes be difficult to receive representation for benefit claims. Often, these Veterans cannot reach existing Veterans Service organizations (VSOs) or may not be using them due to cultural barriers.

One way VA has tried to help, is through a rule change in the Code of Federal Regulations (38 CFR 14.628). This change will allow eligible tribal organizations to become accredited by VA. It is believed that accredited tribal organizations can provide Veterans with better, more culturally competent services.

Over the past year, VA's Office of Tribal Government Relations (OTGR) and Office of General Counsel (OGC) have worked together to implement this rule change.

In March of 2016, letters were sent to tribal leaders, asking for their input.

"This rule is a positive step forward for Indian Country and VA," said Reyn Leno, Vietnam Veteran and Chairman of the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde. "For decades, tribes with accredited facilities have been able to provide quality services to our Native American Veterans and non-Native Veterans alike. The piece that was missing was the ability to provide assistance on VA benefit claims. This rule recognizes the unique relationship our tribes have with our federal government and Veterans in some of our most rural communities. No Veteran should have to drive hundreds of miles to receive care they could be eligible to receive next door at a tribal facility.

The ability to credential tribal facilities as VSOs will also help to further extend services to Native Veterans in a culturally appropriate manner.

Native Service — Since the earliest wars, Native Americans have served in high numbers with distinction and honor.

I applaud the rule and VA for their due diligence on this matter."

Tribal Nations serve Veterans first. We open our ceremonies and carry the flags of our nations. As of 2015, 16,910 American Indians or Alaska Natives serve in the armed forces, making up 1.3 percent of the military population.

But receiving VA accreditation is not an easy process. VA must ensure, as legally required, that all accredited VSOs can provide long-term, quality representation. As such, tribal organizations must meet the same stringent requirements as national and state VSOs. OTGR can assist with tribal applications before they are sent to OGC, which makes the final approval.

VA invites all interested tribal organizations to consider beginning the process of becoming a VSO.

On a daily basis active duty members become Veterans and too many Veterans return home to find that their greatest challenges still lie ahead. War is ugly and it has long lasting effects that challenges the resilience of all people.

The tribal nations are committed to finding the path for our Veterans to become tribal leaders, teachers, business owners, active citizens and successful parents.

We work closely with the OTGR and have established a good relationship with this important VA office.

I invite other tribes to connect with OTGR as well, as they begin the road to becoming accredited VSOs. The ability to work with local, trusted qualified representatives to file for benefits our Veterans have earned through their service can make a world of difference in the Veteran and their family's overall quality of life.

I look forward to seeing tribal nations begin to support their warriors through this effort to serve those who have selflessly and courageously served our nation.

"When we negotiated this agreement nearly 15 years ago, we insisted that the revenue sharing benefit the entire region and education was an ideal cause," Chairman Melendez said. "With this money going to fund capital improvements for the school district—to repair school facilities, to construct new schools, to purchase new equipment—all students including RSIC tribal members and Urban Indian students will benefit.

This first payment has been in the works for a long time.

The vision for a retail complex got started when using tribal tax revenues and a 1995 tribal municipal bond, the Colony purchased multiple properties and amassed 22 acres just east of its downtown land base.

However, construction was not immediate.

Because these properties had been the site of several industrial businesses, the RSIC partnered with the Environmental Protection Agency and Nevada Division of Environment Protection, to remove soil contaminated with pesticides, petroleum hydrocarbons, metals, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), lead, and nitrogen.

What Do You Need in Case of an Emergency?

Be prepared with supplies, essentials for extreme weather, disasters

*Submitted by N. David Hunkup
RSIC Emergency Services Manager*

It is important to be prepared for emergencies such as power outages, earthquakes, fires and other disasters.

Every homeowner should have an emergency survival kit in their home. The kits should have enough supplies for all of your family members for at least 72 hours or longer.

Emergency supplies can be stored in a large, clean trash can, suitcase, duffle bag, backpack, footlocker, or individual pack.

Non-perishable food items such as ready-to-eat items in unbreakable containers, canned meats, juice, fruits and vegetables, powdered milk, infant care foods, crackers, peanut butter, freeze-dried and dehydrated goods are recommended.

In addition, emergency supplies should include enough bottled water to provide a minimum of 1-gallon per person per day.

Other items recommended for emergency survival kits include:

- ✦ Battery powered radio with weather alert channels
- ✦ First aid kit and manual
- ✦ Sleeping bags and wool/thermal blankets
- ✦ Manual can opener

- ✦ Waterproof/windproof matches
- ✦ Flashlight and spare batteries
- ✦ Water purification tablets
- ✦ Utility knife
- ✦ Emergency candles
- ✦ Extra eyeglasses/contact lenses
- ✦ Essential medications
- ✦ Extra clothing

Homeowners should also include items for a sanitation kit which includes:

- ✦ Plastic bucket with tight fitting lid
- ✦ Plastic bags and ties

- ✦ Disinfectant
- ✦ Improvised toilet seat (5 gallon bucket works well)
- ✦ Paper cups and plates
- ✦ Personal toiletries and hygiene products
- ✦ Baby/infant supplies
- ✦ Aluminum foil
- ✦ Paper towels
- ✦ Plastic utensils
- ✦ Soap
- ✦ Work gloves

For more information, please contact N. David Hunkup at 785-1373 or via email at: dhunkup@rsic.org.

Be Prepared — Being ready means being equipped with the proper supplies you might need in the event of an emergency or disaster. The RSIC Emergency Services Department encourages every household to keep supplies in an easy-to-carry bag that you can use at home or take with you. File photo

Hungry Valley Christian Fellowship

There is a children's Sunday school song that states, "every promise in the book is mine, every chapter, every verse, every line."

The Old Testament prophet Jeremiah, known as the weeping prophet, gave hope to a people living in captivity. Too many times people try to manipulate with fear and terror. Yet, the worse is to become prisoners of our own minds and addictions. God did not give us a spirit of fear but of power, love and of a sound mind. That is a promise and a purpose for all believers in Christ.

Ask Paul

When I see people who say they have pain, the first question I ask is "What pain medication are you taking?"

It seems our society has been trained to reach for a pain pill whenever a person experiences pain.

Some people become so dependent on pain pills, they will take a pain pill even when they don't feel pain, but perceive something will be uncomfortable.

This is a pain pill cycle and this cycle is difficult to break.

Please keep in mind that not everyone who takes pain pills will have problems. Actually most people who take pain pills follow their doctor's instructions and use these pills to heal with good results.

However, pain pills are addictive and there are people who are living in a pain pill cycle lifestyle. This article is about trying some different solutions for pain instead of continuing to just take pills.

First, think of the health care provider as a mentor/coach who can create a plan or strategy to stop a patient's pain pill cycle. This medical professional's role is only as successful as the patient's willingness to engage in this plan. Imagine any sport that has a coach. What would happen if the coach created a great game plan and the individuals on the team did what they wanted, disregarded the coach's plan, and ran around shouting "throw me the ball?"

It would be fun to watch, but the outcome would be chaotic.

The coach or doctor only has as much power as the player or patient gives him/her by following his/her advice.

For example, if the patient with a heart condition decides to not follow the doctor's directions for a healthy lifestyle, the patient's heart will be negatively impacted.

Many studies show pain medication especially opioids (Vicodin, OxyContin, and others) are appropriate for short term pain only. These medications can be a big problem when managing long term or chronic pain. Your health care professionals are aware of this and are invested in keeping you safe and healthy.

If a person has chronic pain, medication can actually make the person more sensitive to pain and heighten their pain response.

The person has to take the lead in exploring and giving an honest effort in participating in healthy alternatives. It is a team effort, but the person on the medication has to put in most of the effort.

A healthy lifestyle without being reliant on medications is the payoff. Our health care team offers healthy lifestyle changes instead of taking pain pills, explains what success will look like, and creates an exit strategy or time frame for taking pain medications.

Many people who have relied on taking pain pills for a long time have actually built a lifestyle around taking their pain pills. When a health care professional asks the patient to try an alternative lifestyle change instead of taking pain pills, the patient will try the lifestyle change one time and say “this doesn’t work” and go back to taking the pain pill.

The patient will even use their single attempt at a healthy lifestyle change as an excuse to continue the pain pill cycle. Keep in mind, many of these healthy alternatives take effort and may be uncomfortable in the beginning but, like everything else, everything is easier after practice. And if we are comparing the effort it takes to engage in a healthy activity to the effort of taking a pill we see that taking a pain pill doesn’t take much effort at all. So, honestly, it’s not fair to compare – is it?

How can a family member or partner help support this patient and also hold them accountable? Answer: Make the healthy lifestyle alternative fun and rewarding.

Engage in the activity with the person, fix healthy meals and enjoy the meals with the person, have contests, be creative and incorporate as much laughter as possible.

Here are some ideas that people who have chronic pain have tried and say they’ve had good results. Many of these ideas are simple and don’t require much advanced thought to understand the logic, like eat a good diet, exercise and get sleep. Of course if you have any questions always consult your physician.

Dr. Pohl, Medical Director for the Las Vegas Recovery Center which specializes in chronic pain and addiction, says pain is often the result of inflammation in the body. An easy fix is to review your diet and limit foods that cause inflammation like white bread, rice, tortillas, sugar, and soda. Then for a double health effect, add anti-inflammatory foods like salmon, sardines, and vegetables. Make healthy meals at home a life-style standard.

You can talk to Kristie Messerli at (775) 329-5162, ext. 1943 who is a registered dietitian at RSTHC for great healthy dietary education.

Many times people in chronic pain are stiff from sitting around because they have a difficult time moving. It’s tough, but the more the person exercises or moves around the easier these activities will become. Engage in fun activities. Start by throwing a ball or walking and talking. Move your body. Pick a sport such as basketball and take turns shooting free throws.

Be gentle with yourself and take things gradually. Give Zumba a try. The Zumba instructor’s energy is contagious. Yoga, aquacise and line dancing are also available at RSTHC. You’ll also find an acupuncture specialist at the RSTHC – another way to relieve chronic pain.

Sometimes creating a healthy lifestyle is like eating an elephant.

Q: How do you eat an elephant?

A: A little bit at a time. Have some fun. Engage in your community. Go to pow wows and sweats, dance, engage with your spirituality, and play with your kids and grandkids.

Many of my clients who seek alternatives to pain medication say it’s challenging, but their new lifestyle was well worth it.

Also, dispose of unneeded medications. If you would like to dispose of your unwanted old pain medications, look for information about the Prescription Drug Round Up in April or contact Jason Hill at the RSTHC (775) 329-5162, ext. 1965.

Athletic scholarship, helping hand, historical setting

College Ball – Angelica Shanrock, a senior at Spanish Springs High, will continue her education at College of the Siskiyous (COS) in Weed, Calif., thanks to a basketball scholarship. Shanrock recently led SSHS to a victory in the Northern 4A Regional Tournament in which she scored 27 points.

Sharing Resources – The RSIC Human Services did public outreach to area homeless during a recent summit. Over 1,500 people were given small items from the Colony staff— granola bars, pens, gloves, hand warmers, clothes pins, hand sanitizers, raincoat covers—which were donated by various RSIC departments and divisions.

On Site Learning – Several students from Vaughn Middle School took a tour of Stewart Indian School as part of the Nevada Tribes Legislative Day. Besides learning the history of Indian boarding schools, the students visited the state capital and witness the Nevada government in action.

Big Crowd – Students from the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony were among a large group learning about the Stewart Indian School which served as the only off-reservation Indian boarding school in Nevada from 1890 to 1980. In 1985, the school was listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Money Never Will Compensate for Loss of Homeland

Federal government inconsistent with 5th amendment in Indian Country

*Submitted by Steve Melendez
Board Member
American Indian Genocide Museum*

When everyone from our president on down believes that Iraq had no weapons of mass destruction, you have to wonder why we went to war in the first place.

We also know now that there was never any evidence linking Saddam Hussein to the 9/11/01 terrorist attacks.

Some said we went to war for the oil and some said we went to war for the economy. Then there was that three paragraph article in the November 13, 2000 edition of Time magazine entitled, "Saddam Turns His Back on Greenbacks."

The article said that Iraq would no longer accept dollars for oil because it did not want to deal "in the currency of the enemy."

In retrospect, we are only left to speculate why we went to war with Iraq. Pulitzer Prize winning author, James Risen wrote in his book Pay Any Price: "...Within weeks of the toppling of Saddam Hussein's statue in Baghdad's Firdos Square in April 2003... unmarked trucks started backing up to the loading docks at the East Rutherford Operations Center. There, they were filled end to end with dozens of pallets of shrink-wrapped $100 bills...The trucks stopped at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, D.C., where the palletized cash was transferred to the cargo holds of air force C-17 transport planes...finally, the planes landed at Baghdad International Airport..."

Of the $12 to $14 billion in palletized cash and the $5.8 billion in electronic transfers, Risen wrote, "All told, approximately $20 billion was sent to Iraq without any clear orders or direction on how the money was to be used."

Over a decade later, we can only wonder why nations go to war with each other.

Even at Standing Rock, you have to read between the lines and look behind the scenes to understand why tribal councils will turn on their own people.

On February 15, 1974, the government, through an act of Congress called the Indian Claims Commission, offered the Lakota $17 million dollars for their homeland. When it became obvious that the Indians would not take such a piddling amount, the Congress passed another act called the Indian Claims Commission Act Amendment which added $85 million more in interest under the 5th amendment of the U.S. Constitution (dealing with just compensation).

The Fifth Amendment says, "No person shall be compelled ... to be a witness against himself, nor deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation."

The government lawyers were in a dilemma because allowing interest from the time of "discovery" (the Indian Claims Commission was based on the

Five Hundred Years Ago — According to Native American author Steve Newcomb, when Columbus set foot on Guanahani island, he performed a ceremony to take possession of the land for Spain, acting under the international laws of Western Christendom. This act was based on a religious Doctrine of Discovery. Five centuries later, the United States government still uses this archaic Judeo-Christian doctrine to deny the rights of Native American Indians.

"Doctrine of Discovery") for one tribe would have to apply to all the tribes, even the ones which had already been paid.

In 1980, the Supreme Court weighed in, the United States offered $105 million dollars. Currently, that amount has grown to $1.3 billion dollars.

Only adults and no children would share in that money--- money that would only amount to about $10,000 per adult. Does anyone know what the cut off age is that deprives a child the right to his or her homeland? Those parents who are thinking of accepting that meager amount of money are throwing the children in their own households into the fires of hopelessness.

This money is for the selling of the Great Sioux Nation today. Make no mistake about it, this is an out-of-court settlement with the Congress picking and choosing which parts of the 5th amendment applies to the Indians---if at all. The "due process of law" part would demand that the supreme law of the land, the treaty be honored.

These so-called leaders with dollar signs in their eyes need to consider that out of the Homestake Gold Mine alone, they took 41 million troy ounces of gold worth $48 billion dollars at today's prices.

Just a couple of years ago in the Elouise Cobell case, those few Indians who were actually receiving royalties from oil wells found that once they cashed those Cobell settlement checks, their royalty payments stopped. Of course not many people talk about it because the shame of being swindled also steals your voice.

There is a parallel between what is happening now and what happened with the Western Shoshone. While Carrie Dann was trying to get their treaty honored, the tribal councils were trying to sell the land right out from under her and everyone fighting for their rights. The Western Shoshone had the Treaty of Ruby Valley of 1863 which they took all the way to the United Nations.

In 2003 the U.S. government admitted that they were relying on the 1823 Supreme Court decision of Johnson v. M'Intosh - the doctrine of discovery.

During the Obama administration, checks were cut to every man, woman and child on the rez for $20,000 dollars that the tribal councils settled with the government for their land rights---with another $20,000 to come at a later date. Some people think that the United Nations is worthless, but it has a way of shining a light on government swindle. Then it is up to sovereign nations to determine whether they are the masters of their fates, the captains of their souls, or the cutters of their own throats.

During the hearing in 1976, to bump the offer from $17 million to $102 million, government attorney Mileur argued against adding interest, "...Senator, if you are going to apply this standard for the Sioux, you have got to apply it for every other Indian tribe in the country. Now, if you are going to apply that, how much should be given to the California Indians who got $29 million for the State of California? How about Los Angeles and San Francisco? How about the Florida Indians who got $16 million? ...Who are getting $16 million for most of the State of Florida? How about Miami and Palm Beach? How much is that worth today? And if you are going to apply that standard for the Sioux, you have to apply it for everybody else."

The question that should be asked is whether Congress has the right to discriminate which parts of the 5th amendment applies to the Indians. This is especially relevant since the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples says in Article 37 that "Indigenous peoples have the right to recognition, observance and enforcement of treaties..."

Recently, in a video on Censored News, a law enforcement officer told a water protector that he was "on the asphalt" and the water protector told him, "You are on stolen land."

Let the United Nations decide who the law enforcers are and who in fact are the law breakers.

After a large-scale environmental cleanup, the RSIC worked with the Washoe County Flood Control Project, the Washoe County Public Works Department, the Nevada Departments of State Lands, the Army Corps of Engineers, and Wal-Mart to construct a 0.4 mile floodwall and levee along the south bank of the Truckee River between I-580 (395S) and the Glendale bridge.

Furthermore, the Colony also worked with the Nevada Division of Public Works to design and construct a state-of-the-art facility for the Department of Corrections.

Upon completion, the Colony and the State Lands swapped the former Northern Nevada Restitution Center at 2595 E. 2nd St., and the site of the new facility at 225 Sunshine Ln.

This dynamic, multifaceted public-private collaboration actually sprung from a need to expand health services to the RSIC's 1,000-plus tribal members as well as the Northern Nevada Urban Indian population.

In addition, the undertaking also diversified the Colony's tax base from sole reliance on tobacco sales, while the RSIC retail operations accounted for the construction of a $20 million health center.

In fact, last July, the RSIC celebrated its seventh year of operation of the Reno-Sparks Tribal Health Center, a direct result of this multi-agency collaboration.

The 65,000 square-foot health center not only provides medical care for the RSIC tribal members, but for an additional 6,000 Urban Indians.

The public is invited to attend Tuesday's celebration at the health center.

Fashion Statement — Employees throughout the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony sent a life-saving message through their attire on National Wear Red Day For Women. Because heart disease and stroke cause 1 in 3 deaths among women each year, killing approximately one woman every 80 seconds, this massive national public awareness movement inspires women to make lifestyle changes, mobilize communities and shape policies to save lives.
