Message from Chairman Melendez:

This past year, 2020, has been one of the most devastating and challenging year we have ever faced. Not a day has gone by that we hear of someone, a relative or friend, who has passed away or hospitalized due to the COVID-19 virus. In addition, others passed due health issues not related to COVID-19. And with limited services at many healthcare facilities, it makes taking care of yourself or family even more difficult.

With such a depressing news, we are all challenged with staying healthy mentally. As the negative news of increasing COVID-19 cases and the political turmoil in the country can be very depressing. Our BEST HOPE right now for this pandemic to end, is the COVID-19 Vaccine.

I know there has been some reluctance to take the vaccine, but considering how deadly the virus can be, also the new strains that are mutating and entering the U.S., and considering the high percentage rate of underlying health conditions in Native Americans, it is best that all receive the vaccine. We not only receive the vaccine for ourselves, but also to protect our community.

Again we cannot forget the teachings by our ancestors—for they too have survived many diseases and pandemics. Today, we have to continue to remind each other we are riding the COVID-19 Pandemic wave and it’s not over until it’s over. We are resilient and we will get through this together.

Here’s what Dr. Gayathri Nararajan from RSTHC has to say...

Dear RSTHC Community—As you are aware, we are all undergoing challenging times due to the COVID Pandemic that has ravaged our community. Unfortunately it has infected many of our members, some of whom have succumbed to the deadly virus. We at RSTHC are working diligently to provide COVID care—both COVID testing and COVID vaccination, all while providing routine patient care and other services.

We request that you be patient with us while we systematically procure and vaccinate every member of our community in accordance to IHS/ CDC guidelines.

We encourage everyone to get vaccinated so that we not only protect ourselves, but also our family, friends and community including our vulnerable population. One finger cannot lift a pebble – Hopi.

WE as a community, with everyone’s cooperation, diligence and understanding, CAN survive these challenging times and emerge as a greater community. I appreciate everyone for following the public health guidelines; wearing masks and physical distancing.

RSTHC COVID-19 Vaccine Info and Tips:

- There are 2 vaccine approved in the US for COVID-19 prevention: Pfizer and Moderna.
- They are equally effective.
- RSTHC receives limited number of vaccines every week. Presently, priority is given to healthcare workers, patients equal to or over the age of 65 years old and frontline employees. This information is based on current CDC Vaccine Priority Levels.
- Sign up for RAVE Alerts and we will text you when it’s your turn to get vaccinated. To sign up for RAVE, email bsam@rsic.org or text/call 775-842-2902 or 775-329-2936.
- You CAN NOT get the COVID-19 infection from the COVID-19 Vaccine.
- Almost anyone can receive the vaccine and there are no many contraindications to receiving it.
- Each vaccine requires 2 doses. Both doses should be the same vaccine brand (Pfizer or Moderna) and from the same facility.
- Please do not receive any other vaccine(s) within 2 weeks prior to the first COVID-19 Vaccine through 2 weeks after the second COVID-19 Vaccine dose.
- You CAN receive the COVID-19 Vaccine even if you had the COVID-19 infection. Please wait till you are symptom free before receiving the vaccine.
- You are immunologically protected beginning 10 days after your 2nd dose of the COVID-19 Vaccine.
- The vaccine is 95% effective at preventing COVID-19 infection and there is a 5% chance of getting COVID-19 infection despite having been vaccinated.
- Most Common side effects are injection site pain, swelling, or fatigue that may last for a couple days.
- Currently, there is no scientific data available regarding duration of immunity from the vaccine (Pfizer or Moderna).
- The vaccine is only 95% effective so YOU MUST continue mask wearing and social distancing until further information is available.
- Wearing a mas and maintaining social distance WILL also protect you from new strains as they emerge.
- Currently identified new strains are not known to cause an even more severe illness despite having the recognition of being more contagious.
- As seen with the Flu Virus, mutations may occur and yield newer viral strains. New vaccines may become available if needed.
- The current COVID-19 Vaccine protects against the new known strains (England and South African).

Why RSIC Tribal Leaders are urging you to get the vaccine when it’s your turn:

A survey of 1,435 Native Americans across the country spearheaded by Abigail Echo-Hawk, director of Urban Indian Health Institute, in November revealed that 75 percent would be willing to be vaccinated, not because they suddenly trust Uncle Sam, but because they put the "we" ahead of the "me."

Tribal Council Treasurer, Robin M. Eagle states, “Vaccinations can mean the difference between life and death. When you get sick, your children and parents are at risk too!! When you turn down the COVID-19 Vaccine, you leave yourself vulnerable to the illness. You also put our most cherished population, infants and elders, at a higher risk. We must do our part to protect our generations.”

Tribal Council Member, Toby Stump encourages ALL to get vaccinated. “When we lose an elder or anyone in our community, we lose a a piece of our history, language and culture. With COVID-19 enhancing the deaths in our community, we have a greater responsibility to protect our people, especially our vulnerable population, and preserve our cultural ways. The COVID-19 Vaccine gives us a better opportunity to protect our people. Getting the vaccine is not only for ourselves, but for our loved ones and our native people.”

Tribal Council Member, Tony Abbie says, “First of all, I would like our community to get back to normal. I feel we should be vaccinated to ensure our own safety (family and nucleaus family) and the safety of all our community. We have survived over 500 years and have adjusted to various diseas es and tribulations. We will get through COVID-19 just like our ancestors did.”

Feel free to contact the RSTHC if you have any questions or concerns about the COVID-19 Vaccine at 775-329-5162.

There is no FDA-approved vaccine to prevent COVID-19. The EUA for the Moderna COVID-19 Vaccine is in effect for the duration of the COVID-19 EUA declaration justifying emergency use of the vaccine, unless terminated or revoked (after which the vaccine may no longer be used).

Before you get the vaccine
Tell your vaccination provider if you:
- Have any allergies
- Have a fever
- Have a bleeding disorder or take blood thinners
- Are immunocompromised or are on a medicine that affects your immune system

RSIC Planning Department Releases the RSIC Web Map

Web mapping and the use of geographic information online have evolved rapidly over the past few decades. Almost everyone uses mapping information, whether one realizes it or not. RSIC has an opportunity to evolve with the technological trends in the usage of web mapping and geographic data into its operations, workflows, and web infrastructure. It will allow RSIC to provide and share public information of related to Tribal lands, infrastructure, and commercial properties.

GIS (Geographic Information System) web tools are used to make maps, analyze data, share, and collaborate, and that is the main goal of the RSIC Web Map. It was created using base layers to give context and relevant RSIC data for staff, Tribal members, and community in general. It provides the option to open it on a device (phones, tablets, laptops, or desktops) and if your device has GPS capability (i.e., smartphone), it will show your location on the map. This could be very beneficial for those who are not familiar with the evacuation routes or where the Colony’s boundaries are located. The user can interact with the map in many ways: turn on/off layers to focus only on the ones that he is interested in, make measurements of distances, areas, and get coordinates of specific locations, draw lines, polygons, create annotations on the map, and export or print the map for their own reports, flyers, or events.

The new RSIC Web Map will be able to be accessed in a two ways. The first is via the at the top of the RSIC web page (www.rsic.org). The second will be via scanning a QR code such as the to the right with your smartphone QR code reader. This will then pull the web map up on your browser and you will be ready to use the map! Any questions can be e-mailed to gis@rsic.org.
‘Tribes are hurting’: Senator Cortez Masto (D-Nevada)

Speaks in support of increased COVID-19 relief and additional funding for tribal nations.

Senate on Indian Affairs, Indianz.Com

Sen. Catherine Cortez Masto (D-Nevada) speaks in support of increased COVID-19 relief and additional funding for tribal nations on February 3, 2021.

“In Nevada and across the country, our tribes are hurting,” said Masto. “They are trying to do too much with far, far too little. Some of them are still under lockdown, desperate to protect elders — often the gatekeepers of rich Native languages and cultures — from the impact of the virus that they see is devastating their communities, and many are struggling to keep business doors open. All of them are stretched too thin.”

“Tribes were suffering from unstable funding streams and budget shortfalls even before the coronavirus pandemic affected their economies,” added Masto, who serves on the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs.

“Now on shoestring budgets — with staffing levels that were insufficient even before the pandemic hit — they are trying to address the myriad urgent needs of their communities.”

This week, the U.S. Senate is taking up legislation to help implement President Joe Biden’s so-called American Rescue Plan. According to Democrats, it provides more than $28 billion in investments for health care, education, housing and other programs serving Indian Country and Native communities.

“The federal government absolutely has to do more to support these efforts and uphold the federal trust responsibility. It can help tribes navigate the federal bureaucracy and ensure that funds allocated to tribal priorities actually get into the hands of those who need them,” said Masto.

Biden: ‘Tribal sovereignty will be a cornerstone’

Biden Administration has made several actions in the first week concerning tribal nations.

By Jourdan Bennett-Begaye, Indian Country Today

The third of four executive orders signed by President Joe Biden on Tuesday focuses on strengthening the nation-to-nation relationships with tribes. It's only one presidential action of many taken by the administration in week one.

Biden signed a presidential memorandum that requires all federal agencies and executive departments to have a “strong process in place for tribal consultation,” said Libby Washburn, Chickasaw and the newly appointed special assistant to the president for Native American Affairs for the White House Domestic Policy Council. The position previously was held by Kim Teehee, Cherokee, and Jodi Archambault, Hunkpapa and Oglala Lakota, in the Obama Administration.

The move represents the new president “committing to regular, meaningful robust consultation with tribal leaders” and it requires all federal agencies and executive departments to have a “strong process in place for tribal consultation,” Washburn said.

Biden gave remarks on his racial equity plan, which includes the signed tribal consultation memorandum, from the White House State Dining Room.

“Today I’m directing the federal agency to reinvigorate the consultation process with Indian tribes,” Biden said, noting respect for sovereignty “will be a cornerstone of our engaging with Native American communities.”

Washburn said previous presidents like Barack Obama and Bill Clinton have done this.

So what makes this one different?

It enforces a previous tribal consultation executive order signed on Nov. 6, 2000. This time around the executive order requires the head of each agency to submit, within 90 days, a memorandum with a detailed plan of action on how they will implement policies and directives, Washburn said. Agencies must listen to what tribes want.

These federal agencies and executive departments will have to continuously keep the White House updated, she said.

Tribal consultation is also crucial when it comes to the pandemic.

“This builds on the work we did last week to expand tribes’ access to the Strategic National Stockpile for the first time, to ensure they receive help from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, FEMA, to fight this pandemic,” Biden stated Tuesday.

On Jan. 21, Biden announced that FEMA would make financial assistance available to tribal governments at 100 percent

When the COVID-19 pandemic was declared a national emergency, it activated eligible tribal, state and local governments to access FEMA emergency funding, Washburn said. The federal cost share was 75 percent, and tribes were responsible for 25 percent of the cost.

"It has been something the tribes have been asking for, for a long time, and there has been legislation pending in the House and Senate on it," Washburn said.

The funding can be used for safe openings, operations of schools, childcare facilities, health care facilities, shelters, transit systems, and more.

Another ask by the tribes: access to the Strategic National Stockpile. And granted by the administration on Jan. 21.

The public health supply chain executive order states that the "Secretary of Health and Human Services shall consult with Tribal authorities and take steps, as appropriate and consistent with applicable law, to facilitate access to the Strategic National Stockpile for federally recognized Tribal governments, Indian Health Service healthcare providers, Tribal health authorities, and Urban Indian Organizations."

Fawn Sharp, Quinault, president of the National Congress of American Indians, said the administration’s first week demonstrated that the needs of tribal nations are a priority.

"I am both excited and encouraged that the Biden Administration is taking so many meaningful and significant steps towards Tribal Nations' priority issues -- respect for sovereignty, racial equity, urgent action on climate change, protection of sacred sites and ancestral ecosystems, and the commitment to meaningful Tribal consultation," she said. "There's immense work still to be done, but we celebrate that the first steps President Biden has taken towards truth and reconciliation with Tribal Nations are so responsive to our needs and aligned with our values and principles."

Since Day One, the Biden administration has gone full speed on taking presidential actions that affect tribal nations.

Hours after taking his oath, Biden revoked the permit for the Keystone XL pipeline, placed a temporary moratorium on all oil and gas activities in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, and signed another executive order on "advancing racial equity and support for underserved communities through the federal government."

"I think it's exciting and it shows that things are going to be front and center for him and his entire administration," Washburn said, adding that includes hiring more Native people across the board.

In addition to New Mexico Rep. Deb Haaland’s nomination for Interior secretary, Washburn said, "President Biden, he promised during the campaign that tribes would have a seat at the table at the highest levels of federal government and a voice throughout the government, and I think that he’s really showing in the early beginning days of his administration that he is going to make sure that happens."

And down to what is in the Oval Office. Washburn pointed out that a painting of Andrew Jackson, a strong proponent of Indian removal, was removed from the Oval Office. The "Swift Messenger" sculpture by Allan Houser, Chiricahua Apache, now sits on a bookcase, reported the Albuquerque Journal.

As for land acknowledgements, that’s an ongoing conversation.

"It is something that we are talking about, so I think we will talk about it and really, I'd like to talk to Deb Haaland about it as well, and once she's confirmed it's something that I think will become a focus," Washburn said.

This story has been corrected to show Tuesday, Jan. 26 was the day the executive order was signed.
