The Annual CommUNITY Pride Parade was held in Downtown, Reno, July 24, 2021. The Pride Parade dates back over 50 years and is pivotal to the acceptance of the LGBTQ Community. Northern Nevada Pride is produced by and by and supports the efforts of Our Center, a non-profit organization. Our Center is working to establish and maintain a safe, empowering, and supportive center in Northern Nevada that addresses advocacy, educational, health, social, and wellness program.

What does “Two Spirit” mean in Native American Communities? The Indigenous role predates genderquerness and transphobia. Ask, “what does Two Spirit mean?” and you’ll find many answers. In the centuries before European colonizers arrive in what’s now North America, the Indigenous people currently referred to as Two Spirit held unique roles within their respective tribes.

traditionally, Native American two-spirit people were male, female, and sometimes intersexed individuals who combined activities of both men and women with traits unique to their status as two-spirit people. In most tribes, they were considered neither men nor women; they occupied a distinct, alternative gender status.

In modern society, “Two Spirit” is an umbrella term used across the U.S. Native American and Canadian First Nations communities. A feminine spirit and masculine spirit are the titular “two,” though a Two Spirit person’s gender identity is unique to each individual. For many who identify, owning the term is a way to reconnect with an important and largely forgotten history. For my indigenous relatives, it is to remind them that we were here. And to remind them that we used to be honored and celebrated, and lifted up within our communities,” Harlan Pruden, First Nation Cree organizer and editor of Two Spirit Journal, tells Oprah Daily, here’s some background on what it means to be Two Spirit, the rich history behind it, and why some Two Spirit people feel that it’s a way to reclaim their own heritage.

The term was coined in 1990.

The Pan-Indian term Two Spirit was coined in 1990 at the Third Annual Inter-Tribal Native American/First Nations Gay & Lesbian American Conference in Winnipeg, Canada. It was intentionally conceived to replace the French term used by European settlers, berdach, which has offensive roots and is considered derogatory. But while the term is powerful identifier that shares meaning across hundreds of culturally diverse Native nations and tribes, the actual name and role of Two Spirit person is different within each nation - just as it was many centuries ago.

“Before colonization, our tribal communities actually had a specific word for individuals who are like me, “Lenny Hayes, a therapist and member of the Sisseton Wahpeton-Oyate of the northeast corner of South Dakota. “I define myself first as winkte, which is the word given to my by my people, and secondly as a Two Spirit male,” Hayes tells Oprah Daily. For Pruden, ‘Two Spirit is not an identity. It’s a community organizing tool, or a placeholder. Like Hayes, the Vancouver, Canada-based educator used the term in his work; in Pruden’s case, it’s a way to communicate Indigenous understandings of gender and social roles that were created long before the ways that Western non-Native society characterizes those today.

“Ayahkwew is my identity,” he says.

Most pre-colonial Indigenous societies had three or more genders. A tribe could have 3, 5, 7, or in at least one instance, 12 genders, Pruden says. The role a Two Spirit person had in their community varied by tribe; in addition to wearing “opposite gender” clothes, they were often healers, name-givers, ceremony leaders, or matchmakers. In precolonial Cree society, Pruden explains, “men lived in one camp while women lived in a different camp, with neither permitted to enter the others,” But Ayahkwew could move between these two worlds. “They had unfettered and equal access to both camps, so if there was ever imbalance or disharmony, we would have played this mediator role.” When Spanish colonizers arrived at the end of the 15th century, they brought European gender and sexual taboos with them, and Two Spirit people were deeply impacted. In one particularly horrific instance captured in an engraving, 16th century conquistador or Vasco Nunez de Balboa’s dog slaughtered 42 Panamanian Two Spirit people. And per a 2015 Indian Country Today article, “in 1879, the U.S. government removed thousands of Two Spirited people from their tribes, “sending them to live at Carlisle Indian Industrial School, the first federally-funded Indian Boarding School. “We were looked upon as being spiritual beings, because of the roles that we played in community,” Hayes says. Because of the homophobia and transphobia pervading Western culture from the “discovery” of America up to today, “we’re looked at as sexual beings-everything about us is identified by sex.”

Two Spirit is not a sexual orientation. While Two Spirit people may also identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, queer, or pansexual, Two Spirit does not mean “gay Indian” - a common misperception, according to Pruden.

It’s a term specific to Indigenous people only. To appropriate the term as a non-Native person is exactly that: Cultural appropriation. “It’s an Indigenous term, thereby open solely to Indigenous community members,” Pruden explains. “If a non-Indigenous person says, “hey, I’m Two Spirit’-how do you re-claim something you never had access to? Pruden recalls a moment following a talk on Two Spirit people that he’d given at a camp for Indigenous youth, after which an Indigenous teenager said in awe, “we have something they don’t.” For the teenager, Pruden says, it finally presented an instance in which they didn’t have to solely fit their identity through non-Native concepts such as being non-binary.

or genderqueer. “It was the first time, probably in their life, that there was in inversion of the script.”

It isn’t the same as being non-binary. Speaking specifically about Cree society, in pointing out how language shapes culture, Pruden says, “We don’t have words like ‘identity.’ We don’t have words like ‘gender’ and ‘gender role’ or ‘gender identity.’ We just had a distinct role within society.” While someone may identify as non-binary as well, the roles of Two Spirit people and the tribes they lived in predate, and are separate from, how gender nonconformity and sexuality are defined in non-Native society today.

Don’t assume an Indigeous LBGTQ person is Two Spirit. Because everyone’s identity is in relationship to their personal experience and self-perception, Hayes advises politely asking, “How do you identify?” “It’s respectful and so loving and caring to do that,” Hayes says, because depending on the Indigenous person in question, “someone may identify as LGBTQ, but not identify as Two Spirit.”

Is there a Two Spirit Flag?

While there’s no official Two Spirit pride flags, there are multiple versions that are available for purchase. Some Two Spirit people, including Pruden, believe in a 2s/LGBTQQIA+ acronym, in part because Two Spirit people literally existed first on Turtle Island (the name some U. S. and Canadian Indigenous people use for North America). Others accept the acronym LGBTQ2S+. There are also multiple Two Spirit societies across the U. S. and Canada. In February 2021, the Bay Area American Indian Two-Spirits (BAAITS) held their 10th annual Two-Spirit Powwow, albeit virtually. Hayes attended the event for the first time the year before.

“When I walked into that grand entry with my tribal flag, I became very teary eyed,” Hayes says. “They were tears of happiness, because I’d never been around that many Two Spirit people from different nations.”

Stay on track with your child’s vaccinations.

As a parent, you want to keep your children safe. Routine childhood vaccinations are an important way to ensure that your child and community remain healthy and protected against serious diseases, like measles and whooping cough.

As opportunities for in-person activities and play continue to grow, RSTHC encourages parents to make sure children are up to date on routinely recommended vaccines. Well-child visits and check-ups are essential for routinely recommended vaccination, even during the pandemic.

You can review the 2021 easy-to-read immunization schedule recommended by the CDC and Prevention.

Native Americans Enter Legal Battle Against Thacker Pass “Pee Hee Mu’Huh” Lithium Mine

RENO, NV — In yet another blow to Lithium Americas’ troubled Thacker Pass lithium mine, the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony and a group of Paiute and Shoshone people from the Fort McDermitt and Duck Valley reservations calling themselves Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu (People of Red Mountain) filed a motion in Federal District Court on Tuesday, July 20 alleging that the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) violated the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) in permitting the project. The Paiute name for Thacker Pass is Pee hee mu’huh.

The motion alleges that BLM violated at least five provisions of the National Historic Preservation Act section 106 by failing to adequately consult with tribes, failing to give opportunities for public comment, and failing to consider input in development of their plan for mitigating or avoiding impacts to Northern Paiute and Western Shoshone cultural sites in Pee hee mu’huh. The motion asks the court for a “preliminary injunction” which would halt the mining company from conducting any ground-disturbing activities in the near future.

Arlan Melendez, Chairman of the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony, said: “We will do everything possible to support the indigenous People of Red Mountain and protect this sacred place by making sure that the proper consultation is afforded to all stakeholders, especially the Tribes.”

The motion is likely to result in Reno-Sparks Indian Colony and Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu becoming plaintiff-interveners in an existing lawsuit, which was filed on February 26th by four environmental organizations (Basin and Range Watch, Great Basin Resource Watch, Wildlands Defense, and Western Watersheds Project).

The existing lawsuit claims that the Bureau of Land Management violated the National Environmental Policy Act and other laws. Native American claims under the National Historic Preservation Act represent an allegation of wrongdoing not yet heard in the courts, opening a new front in the legal battle.

Will Falk, one of the attorneys representing Reno-Sparks Indian Colony and Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu in this case, believes that this motion will likely delay the project significantly and could even void the already-granted Federal permit unless actions are taken to come into compliance with the law.

“The BLM Winnemucca of-
Office failed to honor its obligations to consult with Native American Tribes about traditional cultural properties and sacred sites in Pee hee mu’huh under the National Historic Preservation Act. The Joe Biden administration and first-ever Native Secretary of the Interior Deb Haaland have promised that federal agencies will engage in meaningful and robust government-to-government consultation with the Tribes. They are not currently honoring that promise to Tribes who consider Pee hee mu’huh sacred.

Lithium Nevada, the U.S. subsidiary of Lithium Americas, originally planned to begin constructing the Thacker Pass mine in early 2021 through a contractor with the North American Coal Corporation, but delays in permitting, determined opposition, and concerns from locals have already put the project a year behind schedule.

The Thacker Pass project already faces two lawsuits, official protests to required water rights transfers, a protest camp on the mine site that has been in place for six months, contentious public meetings, and widespread opposition from local indigenous people, farmers, and ranchers.

Native opposition has been particularly determined. On June 24th, the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI), the oldest and largest national organization of American Indian and Alaska Native tribal governments, passed resolution #AK-21-027 stating that “NCAI opposes the Thacker Pass lithium mine” and calling on the Department of the Interior to rescind the permits.

The injunction request filed today is the second the court has received in the past two months. On May 27th, the four environmental groups who filed suit in February also asked the court for a preliminary injunction to halt planned "mechanical trenching" operations at Thacker Pass at twenty-seven undisclosed sites. This trenching would be up to “40 meters” long and “a few meters deep” at seven sites. The remaining twenty sites would undergo excavations up to five feet deep.

In response to the news of this planned trenching, Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu organized a rally on July 7th at the offices of Far Western Anthropological Research Group, Inc., the for-profit archeological company hired to excavate the cultural sites at Thacker Pass. At the demonstration, speakers from allied groups and Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu emphasized that the proposed mining activities will desecrate this sacred place, which is the site of a massacre described in Paiute oral history.

In an official statement delivered to Far Western employees, the group stated: “The Tribal Members who comprise Atsa Koodakuh wyh Nuwu are fiercely concerned with the proposed desecration of cultural sites and ancestors' remains. Our oral histories are clear regarding the fact that Peehe Mu’huh [the Paiute name for Thacker Pass] is a massacre site. Western science, government policy, and corporations deny our self-determination and self-representation through this failure to honor traditional knowledge; proposing to verify our truths through an act of desecration instead.”

Supporters of Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu have also filed complaints with the Register of Professional Archeologists alleging the digging up the cultural and burial sites at Thacker Pass. Removing cultural artifacts and remains without full consultation and consent violates the ethical principles outlined by the Society for American Archaeology. Principle Number 2: Accountability states that "responsible archeological research, including all levels of professional activity, requires an acknowledgment of public accountability and a commitment to make every reasonable effort, in good faith, to consult actively with affected group(s), with the goal of establishing a working relationship that can be beneficial to all parties involved."

The People of Red Mountain’s letter confronts Far Western’s breach of ethics and emphasizes the responsibility of Far Western’s archaeologists "to heal historic traumas and re-vision the relationship between Archaeology and Indigenous Peoples to be based on morality and ethics rather than extraction of ancestors, minerals, and knowledge."

Lithium Americas stock price peaked at $26.82 on January 19th, four days after the Record of Decision was released, but has since dropped to half that value. The mine project, which would violate indigenous rights, destroy important wildlife habitat, and pollute air and water, has been described as a “national and international embarrassment.”

Timeline

- January 15, 2021 — Due to regulations cuts and “fast-tracked” permitting under the Trump Administration, the Bureau of Land Management releases a Record of Decision approving the Thacker Pass mine less than a year after beginning the Environmental Impact Statement process required under the National Environmental Policy Act. On the same day, the Protect Thacker Pass camp is established.
- February 11, 2021 — Local rancher Edward Bartell files a lawsuit (Case No. 3:21-cv-00080-MMD-CLB) in U.S. District Court alleging the proposed mine violates the Endangered Species Act by harming Lahontan Cutthroat Trout, and would cause irreparable harm to springs, wet meadows, and water tables.
- February 26, 2021 — Four environmental organizations (Basin and Range Watch, Great Basin Resource Watch, Wildlands Defense, and Western Watersheds Project) file another lawsuit (Case No. 3:21-cv-00103-MMD-CLB) in U.S. District Court alleging that BLM violated the National Environmental Policy Act, Federal Land Policy Management Act, and other laws in permitting the Thacker Pass mine.
- May 13, 2021 — Lithium Nevada informs Plaintiffs in the Feb. 26th lawsuit that it intends to begin ground disturbance at Thacker Pass as soon as June 23 to remove Native American artifacts & cultural sites as part of a “Historic Properties Treatment Plan.”
- May 20, 2021 — Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu releases public statement of opposition to the Thacker Pass mine & starts a petition which has gathered nearly 2,000 signatures.
- May 27, 2021 — The four environmental groups who filed suit on Feb. 26th ask Federal Judges for a Preliminary Injunction to block Lithium Nevada’s proposed Historic Properties Treatment Plan.
- June 8, 2021 — In exchange for a two-week extension to file response briefs to the Plaintiffs’ Motion for Preliminary Injunction to block Lithium Nevada agree that no ground disturbance activities at Thacker Pass would occur before July 29, 2021.
- June 12, 2021 — A rally opposing... the Thacker Pass mine is held in Reno, Nevada, with several hundred people attending. Speakers include members of the Pyramid Lake Paiute Tribe, Fort McDermitt Paiute-Shoshone tribe, Duck Valley

- June 24, 2021 — The National Congress of American Indians (NCAI), the oldest and largest national organization of American Indian and Alaska Native tribal governments, called on the Department of the Interior to rescind the permits for the Thacker Pass project.

- July 7, 2021 — A rally is held at the Carson City office of Far Western Anthropological Research Group, Inc., the for-profit archeological company hired to excavate the cultural sites at Thacker Pass. Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu (People of Red Mountain) deliver a signed letter stating that if Far Western digs up sacred and cultural sites at Thacker Pass, they will be committing actions that are unethical and wrong.

- July 19, 2021 — The Reno-Sparks Indian Colony and Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu (People of Red Mountain) file a motion in Federal District Court alleging that the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) violated the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) in permitting the planned lithium mine.

- July 28, 2021 - US District Court Hon. Miranda M. Du, Chief Judge accepted the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony and Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu Motion to Intervene.

- July 30, 2021 - The Reno-Sparks Indian Colony and Atsa koodakuh wyh Nuwu (People of Red Mountain) filed a preliminary injunction, requesting a judgement to refrain from a particular action. To halt any excavations pertaining to cultural resources, which include Native American cultural items.

- Defendants have until August 12th to reply to the preliminary injunction.

The legal team is working for all tribes pro bono. They will not take any money from the tribes. That’s one of their commitments in protecting Thacker Pass. If you’d like to donate to the Protect Thacker Pass camp and legal defense fund. Please support this effort in the link below.

You can help stop the pandemic by getting a COVID-19 vaccine.
To protect our elders and our community, we need to use all our prevention tools. Vaccines are one of the most effective tools to protect our health. Vaccines work with your body's natural defenses so you can fight the virus.

Each tribal nation or state has its own plan for deciding who will be vaccinated first. Contact your health department or clinic to find out when and where vaccines will be available in your community.

The COVID-19 vaccine can help keep you from getting COVID-19.
COVID-19 can cause serious illness or death. All COVID-19 vaccines available in the United States are effective. Even if you still get the disease after you get vaccinated, the vaccine should protect you from more serious illness.

The COVID-19 vaccine will be free for you.
The United States government is providing the vaccine free of charge to all people in the United States. No one should be charged for the vaccine.

Some COVID-19 vaccines need two shots.
If you are told you need two shots, make sure to get your second shot at the time you are told, so you can get the most protection.

The COVID-19 vaccine will not give you COVID-19.
The authorized COVID-19 vaccines cannot make you sick with COVID-19. They do not contain the virus that causes COVID-19. Getting vaccinated may also protect others around you.

After COVID-19 vaccination, you may have some side effects.
You may have tiredness, headache, chills, and mild fever for 1–2 days. These are normal signs that your body is building protection against COVID-19. After getting the shot, you will be asked to wait for 15–30 minutes to see that you are okay.

You should still get vaccinated if you’ve already had COVID-19.
Even if you have already had COVID-19, it is possible —although rare—that you could get COVID-19 again. Experts do not yet know how long you are protected from getting sick again after having COVID-19. Vaccination is the best protection.

If you have recovered from COVID-19, ask your health provider when you should be vaccinated.

cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/community/tribal/
You should still take steps to protect yourself and others after getting each shot.

It is important for everyone to continue using all the tools available to help stop this pandemic and keep our people safe. You should continue to wear a mask over your nose and mouth in public, stay 6 feet apart, avoid crowds and poorly ventilated spaces, and wash your hands often.

Getting the vaccine and following CDC’s recommendations for protecting yourself and others will offer the best protection from getting and spreading COVID-19.

The U.S. vaccine safety system monitors the safety of all vaccines.

All COVID-19 vaccines used in the United States were tested in clinical studies involving thousands of people, including American Indians and Alaska Natives. These studies were done to make sure the vaccines meet safety standards and protect people of different ages, races, and ethnicities. All authorized COVID-19 vaccines meet the same safety standards as other vaccines used in the United States.

CDC has developed a new tool, v-safe (v-safe.cdc.gov), to help identify any safety issues with COVID-19 vaccines. Sign up to participate after you’re vaccinated!

Unless you have had an allergic reaction to any ingredient in a COVID-19 vaccine, it is safe to get a COVID-19 vaccine.

If you have ever had a severe or immediate allergic reaction to any ingredient in a COVID-19 vaccine, you should not get vaccinated. If you have had an allergic reaction to other vaccines or injectable medications, talk to your healthcare provider.

You may still get vaccinated if you have severe allergies to oral medications, food, pets, insect stings, latex, or things in the environment like pollen or dust.

If you are pregnant or want to have a baby one day, you may get a COVID-19 vaccine.

If you are pregnant now or plan to be pregnant in the future, you may receive the COVID-19 vaccine when it becomes available to you. There is no evidence suggesting that fertility problems are a side effect of any vaccine.

The COVID-19 vaccine will not change your DNA.

Different types of vaccines work in different ways to offer protection, but the COVID-19 vaccine—like any other vaccine—cannot affect your DNA in any way.

It is safe to get a COVID-19 vaccine if you have an underlying medical condition.

People with medical conditions like heart disease, lung disease, diabetes, and obesity are more likely to get very sick from COVID-19. Vaccination is especially important for people with these conditions. People with a weakened immune system may not get as much protection from a COVID-19 vaccine as those with a functioning immune system, but some protection is better than none.

What Causes Lung Cancer?

Anyone can get lung cancer. Lung cancer occurs when cells in the lung mutate or change. Various factors can cause this mutation to happen. Most often, this change in lung cells happens when people breathe in dangerous, toxic substances. Even if you were exposed to these substances many years ago, you are still at risk for lung cancer. Talk to your doctor if you have been exposed to any of the substances listed below and take steps to reduce your risk and protect your lungs.

† Smoking - is the number one cause of lung cancer. It causes about 90 percent of lung cancer cases. Tobacco smoke contains many chemicals that are known to cause lung cancer. If you still smoke, quitting smoking is the best thing you can do for your lung health.

† Vaping - E-cigarettes use a battery powered device that heats a liquid to form vapors - or, more accurately, aerosol that the user can inhale (thus vaping). These devices heat up various flavorings, nicotine, marijuana, or other potentially harmful substances. Nicotine is addictive, we know from experience with regular cigarettes that warnings don’t always work!

† Radon - exposure is the second-leading cause of lung cancer. Radon is colorless, odorless, radioactive gas that exists natural in soil. It comes up through the soil and enters buildings through small gaps and cracks. One out of every 15 homes in the U.S. is subject to radon exposure.

† Hazardous Chemicals - Working with materials such as asbestos, uranium, arsenic, cadmium, chromium, nickel and some petroleum products is especially dangerous.

† Particle Pollution - refers to a mix of every tiny solid and liquid particles that are in the air we breathe. Evidence shows that particle pollution - like that coming from that exhaust smoke - increases the risk of lung cancer.

† Genes - Genetic factors also may play a role in one’s chances of developing lung cancer. A family history of lung cancer may mean you are at higher risk of getting the disease.

† Chronic cough - A cough that you have had for eight weeks or longer is considered chronic. This is an important early symptom that tells you something is wrong with your respiratory system.

† Shortness of breath - It’s not normal to experience shortness of breath that doesn’t go away after exercising, or that you have after little or no exertion. Labored or difficult breathing - the feeling that is hard to breathe in out - is also a warning sign.

- Chronic mucus production - Mucus, also known as sputum or phlegm, is produced by the airways as a defense against infections or irritants. If your mucus production has lasted a month or longer, this could indicate lung disease.

- Wheezing - Noisy breathing or wheezing is a sign that something unusual is blocking your lungs’ airways or making them too narrow.

- Coughing up blood - If you are coughing up blood, it may be coming from your lungs or upper respiratory tract. Wherever it’s coming from, it signals a health problem.

- Chronic chest pain - Unexplained chest pain that lasts for a month or more - especially if it gets worse when you breathe in or cough - also a warning sign.

Will My Lungs Repair Themselves?

- Yes. As with anything that is abused, your body can cure itself once it’s given the opportunity. And that includes your lungs! Cigarette smoking is just like a germ, you’re sick and coughing and you’ve got really bad flu. But if we take that germ out with the right drug, the lungs are able to repair themselves.
President Theodore Roosevelt said this concerning The Dawes Act of 1887, which was also known as the Indian Allotment Act, “(allotment) was a mighty pulverizing engine to break up the tribal mass.” The Dawes Act gave 160-acre allotment of land to each Indian head of the household and what remained of the reservations was sold to white settlers. By 1934, when the allotment policy ended, 60 percent of the Indian land base had been transferred to whites as “surplus.” This included 27,000,000 acres in individual allotment sales.

The sentiments of Teddy Roosevelt rise up like a beast from the sea of land hunger throughout American history.

When allotments ended, the Indian Reorganization Act of 1934 encouraged tribes to draw up constitutions and also encouraged them to form corporations to manage their assets. When the government gets a game plan going they stick to it but in some re-packaged form. Transforming tribes into corporations has been called “termination in disguise” because they move themselves from international laws to state laws. The government knows that united they stand but divided into allotments that can be sold, they fall.

For the Alaska natives, allotments for each head of the household never ended. They never had reservations either. In 1971 the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act divided Alaska into 12 corporate regions. So each Alaska native head of the household already had his 160-acre piece of the pie but he was also made a shareholder in the regional corporation. Recently, the Dingell Act of 2019 allows Alaska Native Vietnam veterans to also apply for an allotment of “non-mineral” land. Sasha Ivan Soboleff the Grand President of the Alaska Native Brotherhood, wa asked if native corporations can help people with economic mobility. He said, “No, because the business nature of ANCSA (Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971) which is the formation of an economic vehicle, calla profit-making business, is not the way the culture of Southeast Alaska Natives...think, or exist. I barely even recognize (the corporation) except a couple of times a year when they give out one or two hundred dollars. It doesn’t set the standard for making a culture come alive. It doesn’t recognize where you live, the lands that your clans and your family have had for years, where you pick berries or you go fishing, or where you dry the food that are going to be due, or you have seaweed. It doesn’t do any of that.”

Originally, provisions of The Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act allowed the corporations’ land holdings to be sold on the open market stating in 1991 but this was repealed by Congress before any sales took place. It is the corporations that hold the title to the land but the natives cannot sell any except for their own individual allotments. It must have been at this point that people started to realize that this was termination in disguise because it sure looked like the Dawes Act of 1887. It is absolutely amazing how Congress can execute an Indian Policy of “yes-you-do-now-you-don’t own land.”

You would think that ownership of the land depended on who had the better title. Who was there first? Not so in the white man’s worldview. When the Dawes Act gave 160-acre allotments and took away 60 million acres, Chief Lone Wolf of the Kiowa’s went to court -- all the way to the Supreme Court. It was through this Supreme Court decision (Lone Wolf v. Hitchcock) on January 5, 1903, that the U. S. claimed “plenary (absolute) power” over Indian land. Justice White wrote the opinion of the court by first sit- ing Johnson v McIntosh (1823) as justification for deciding, “...that Congress possessed a paramount power over the property of the Indians.” Johnson v. McIntosh is known as the “Doctrine of Discovery.” Black’s Law dictionary helpfully printed the definition in plain English in 1991, “Discovery (International Law) as the foundation for a claim of national ownership or sovereignty, discovery is the finding of a county, continent, or island previously unknown, or previously know only to it’s uncivilized inhabitants.”

In other words, the white man owns the land because “Columbus discovered it.” In a democracy, everyone is supposed to be governed by the same set of laws. In a democracy, you cannot have one set of laws for one group and another set of laws for another group based on the color of their skin. The land title for a white man should have the same meaning as the land title for the Indian. “Indian title” as defined by the white man’s law is: “Claim of Indian tribes of right, because of immemorial occupancy, to occupy certain territory to exclusion of any other Indians...Permissive right of occupancy granted by the federal government to aboriginal possessors of the land” it is mere possession not specifically recognized as ownership and may be extinguished by the federal government at any time.”

You know that you are living in a racist colonial system when based on the white man’s Doctrine of Discovery, the Indians do not even own the reservations under their feet. “Indian Reservation” is defined as, “A part of the public domain set aside by proper authority for use and occupation of tribe or tribes of Indians...and under superintendence of the government which retains title of the land.”

Soboleff’s nephew, Nathan, has a few shares given to him by his father from a corporation with no oil wells. He said, “I think I received a shareholder check of like $5 before.” He went on to say, “Not having some kind of ownership to that land is sad, and a lot of people do have strong feelings about having some kind of ownership, even if it’s not in the modern sense of private ownership....but knowing that it’s still Haa Aani, it’s still our lands, is important. And if you don’t have any of that shared ownership in there, there’s something missing.”

It must be remembered that in Genesis 19:24, God did not destroy Sodom and Gomorrah solely for homosexuality but also as Ezekiel wrote, “Now this was the sin of your sister Sod- om: She and her daughters were arrogant, overfed and unconcerned; they did not help the poor and needy. They were haughty and did detestable things before me...”

A sign on Alaska Highway for the Residents of Unit 5a announces: FEDERAL LANDS BEHIND THIS SIGN ARE OPEN TO SUBSISTENCE MOOSE HUNTING UNDER 50 CFR PART 100 UNTIL NOV. 15 OR UNTIL CLOSED BY SPECIAL ORDER, WHICHEVER OCCURS FIRST.

NSHE Native American Fee Waiver
Request for Waiver of Registration, Laboratory and Other Mandatory Fees
(Effective Fall 2021)

General Information: The Nevada Board of Regents provides a waiver of certain fees related to registration to a Native American student who is a member of a federally recognized Indian tribe or nation, all or part of which is located within the boundaries of Nevada, or who is certified by the enrollment department of such tribe or nation or by the Bureau of Indian Affairs as being a descendant of an enrolled member of such tribe or nation, all or part of which is located within the boundaries of Nevada, regardless of member status. An NSHE institution shall waive registration, laboratory and other mandatory fees for eligible students pursuant to Title 4, Chapter 17, Section 15 of the Handbook. To determine if you are eligible, complete this form and provide the required documentation to your institution’s designated office as listed below on page 2. The institution may request additional information or documentation to verify eligibility.

The amount of the waiver must be equal to the balance of registration fees, laboratory fees, and other mandatory fees assessed against the student that remain unpaid after the student’s account has been credited with the full amount of any federal education benefits (excluding loans) to which the student is entitled for that semester; or if a student is not entitled to receive any federal education benefits for a semester, the full amount of the registration fees, laboratory fees, and any other mandatory fees assessed against the student for that semester. Federal education benefits include federal grants awarded based on completion of the FAFSA, including but not limited to Pell Grant, Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant, TEACH Grant, and any federal veteran educational benefits.

Eligibility Requirements – Student must meet all of the following:
- Is admitted to an NSHE institution;
- Has been a resident of Nevada for not less than one year;
- Shows proof of membership or proof of descendancy of a member of a federally recognized tribe or nation, all or part of which is located in the State of Nevada;
- Enrolled in a program leading to a certificate, associate, bachelor’s, master’s, doctoral, or professional degree;
- Completes the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA);
- Has unpaid charges for registration, laboratory or other mandatory fees after any federal education benefits have been applied to the student’s account. Students who have any available federal education benefits but choose to defer use of those benefits are not eligible for this Fee Waiver; and
- Have earned a minimum 2.0 semester GPA during the immediately prior fall/spring semester or summer term at the institution for which the waiver is being requested (for returning students).

Continuing Eligibility: To remain eligible for the fee waiver, the student must maintain at least a minimum 2.0 semester grade point average (GPA). A student with less than the required 2.0 GPA may reinstate eligibility by subsequently enrolling without the fee waiver and meeting the GPA requirement. The fee waiver will then be reinstated for the immediately subsequent fall or spring semester. While the waiver may not be used in summer term, students may use the summer GPA for reinstatement purposes.

Provided the student remains continuously enrolled during fall and spring semesters, this form must be completed and submitted to the institution’s designated office only once. If the institution determines the student is eligible for the waiver, the student must complete the FAFSA each year for which the fee waiver is desired. If there is a break in enrollment, the student must submit a new fee waiver form.

Summer is the time to gather indigenous berries.

Starting in the early summer, many native families begin to gather berries. In the Great Basin area we have three main types of indigenous berries. Buckberries, Chokecherries and elderberries. Each berry can be made into a pudding which was our native people’s dessert. Today we see a more modern take on preparing the berries. We see the berries being prepared in a jam. Many families have traditional gathering spots, however our berries are threatened by overdevelopment in the Reno area.

In the past our RSIC Language and Culture department collaborated with RSTHC Community Health program on a traditional plant gathering series. The series documented harvesting the plants and prepping traditional dishes. The RSIC language and culture program contracted a lead elder to assist with identifying plants and sharing traditional ecological knowledge to staff and community participants. With this knowledge our program is able to continue the traditional teachings of plant gathering.

Unfortunately due to covid we are not able to include community on gathering trips. However the Language staff is still actively involved with harvesting our indigenous plants.
Buckberries are one of the first berries to harvest. They usually are ready to pick in the early summer, the month of July. They are a beautiful orange color. Elders tell us to gather early in the morning as the weather can be very hot in the late afternoon, and the berries get sticky in the heat. You need to wear a long sleeve shirt and jeans as the buckberry bush has sharp barbs that protect the fruit from birds and animals. You can prepare a delicious pudding, tea and jam with the berries.

Elderberry is a medicinal plant that our native people have gathered and consumed in the Great Basin area. It can grow in multiple crops. The elderberry grows in small purple clusters. Its branches are light weight due to the corked centers. Southern Paiutes core the branch and cut down the middle of the branch to create a clapper stick. Used in hand games and circle dance singing. You can prepare the elderberry in a jam, tea or syrup. Modern medicine has deemed the elderberry a super food. High in anti-oxidants. Elderberry has been prepared as a gummie or syrup and taken to boost immunity.

Chokecherry is harvested once the berries are nice and dark. It is a natural astringent, if eaten right off the plant it will suck the moisture right out of your mouth. Chokecherry is prepared in a pudding, tea or jam. The seeds can be ground up and consumed for sickness. The chokecherry berry can also be used as a natural dye. Once boiled it has a beautiful maroon color. The branches are very strong and durable, they are used to frame baby cradle boards.
